

Improving secondary literacy

An online training programme to explore the evidence on effective literacy

Language and literacy provide us with the building blocks not just for academic success, but for fulfilling careers and rewarding lives. Consequently, the EEF has focused considerable effort in this area to distil the research about how to support literacy most effectively in secondary schools.

This training will focus on exploring the recommendations from the EEF Improving Secondary Literacy guidance report.

This programme will:

- Explore the evidence on secondary literacy
- Consider disciplinary literacy and why it should be a priority
- Provide delegates with practical strategies to use in school

The training programme comprises live sessions supported by pre and intersessional modules carried out in your own time

Aimed at

Teachers of all subjects in secondary schools

Dates for live modules

Friday 21 May, 9.30 – 11.30

Friday 2 July, 12.30 – 2.30

Cost

£95 per person

Featuring

Dr Caroline Creaby
Research School Director and Deputy Headteacher

Kate Mouncey
Research School Lead and Director of Sixth Form

Karen Roskilly
Research School Lead and Director of Learning: Sociology

