High quality teaching makes a difference to learners, especially the most disadvantaged. High quality leadership makes a difference to teachers, and to the learners in their care. But what do effective leaders do to help every learner flourish? What do they do to nurture great teaching?

Join us to hear from speakers including Rob Coe, Stuart Kime, C.J. Rauch and Bruce Robertson as they answer these questions and more.

In turbulent times of change, turning to the best available research evidence and practical wisdom on the leadership of professional development and high-quality teaching can help leaders and their teams build a culture of continuous growth.
