

Evidence-Informed Curriculum Development

We are very pleased to welcome you to this exciting programme.

This is a newly updated EEF programme for Essex Schools.

You will be supported to develop an evidence-informed understanding of the principles behind effective curriculum design, across all phases.

Headteachers and senior leaders will be supported to explore, share and challenge teacher beliefs about learning and curriculum.

The training will equip you with planning questions and tools to prompt discussion back in school.

We will focus on the “how”, rather than the “what”.

This will allow you to design and implement a curriculum that is right for your unique context and your specific vision and values.

Using evidence to enhance your curriculum will ensure that the decisions you make for your school are grounded in what research says are the ‘best bets’.

We look forward to meeting you this Autumn 2022

- Dr Julian Grenier, CBE, director of East London Research School
- Fliss James, deputy director
- Melissa Prendergast, deputy director
